Edgy Lee's latest documentary on crystal methamphetamine abuse in Hawaii is set to be released Monday.

This time her video is for employee education and includes drug-prevention training as part of a multimedia presentation. The production was funded by Hawaii's waterfront coalition that includes the ILWU and maritime companies.

The plan is that these employees will use the production as part of ongoing efforts to address drug use in the industry. This is the first time in Hawaii that an industry group has stepped up to confront the issue.

Lee's video includes interviews with RecoveryWorks, a local drug-abuse consultant; national "ice" experts; recovering addicts who are longshoremen and employers; and NFL players who talk about team work.
